Amanda Hoyle – Regional Director, Raleigh & Triad

Amanda Hoyle is the Regional Director for Metrostudy's Raleigh–Durham and Triad regions, responsible for providing local economic and market intelligence for Metrostudy's client base of homebuilders, developers, financial institutions and related professionals in central and eastern North Carolina. Prior to joining Metrostudy in fall 2017, Amanda spent 16 years as an award-winning, senior journalist and research analyst for Triangle Business Journal in Raleigh overseeing the publication's coverage of the region's commercial real estate and residential real estate markets, economic development and other business activities. She also served as editor of the publication's SPACE report, a quarterly survey and evaluation of the Triangle region's 150 million square feet of leasable office, flex, warehouse and retail properties, of which she remains an adviser.

She is also an active member of ULI, NAHB, a board member of the local Risk Management Association chapter, a wife, a mother and crew chief for her husband's hot air balloon team.
